TRÜBNER'S RECORD,

A JOURNAL DEVOTED TO THE LITERATURE OF THE EAST,

WITH NOTES AND LISTS OF CURRENT

AMERICAN, EUROPEAN AND COLONIAL PUBLICATIONS.

THIRD SERIES.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

In the twenty-six years since the late Mr. N. Trübner began to carry out, under the title of "The American and Oriental Literary Record," the idea of supplying periodically, not only lists of books published in the various countries of the East, and throughout the whole of the American Continent, as well as of European works bearing upon those countries, but also literary information on books and their authors, the value and usefulness of the RECORD have been fully recognized throughout the literary world.

The growing importance and rapid spread of scientific research in the United States on the one hand, and the ever-increasing interest which literary men in this country take in the history, antiquities and civilization of the East on the other, made it appear desirable to the publishers two years ago to expand the original design of the RECORD by assigning ample space to literary and scientific articles on subjects within its scope. Thus no other periodical in the English language exists which offers such a solid and comprehensive programme.

With a view to securing, as far as practicable, the indispensable superintendence, by a competent and experienced editor, of the Oriental section of the expanded issue, they then made arrangements with DR. ROST, of the India Office, to undertake the editorial management.

In addition to personal notices, such as obituaries and literary notes of works projected or in progress, the publishers devote space to reviews, independent articles on Oriental subjects, and especially to periodical statements as to the advance made in various fields of Oriental research, so as to make the RECORD a depository of information concerning the current state of Eastern Literature in all its branches.

The price of the New Series is 10s. a volume of 6 parts, or 2s. per number.

Radhakanta Deva's Sanskrit Encyclopædical Lexicon, to which the late Professor Wilson gave a hearty welcome as early as 1819 in the preface to the first edition of his Sanskrit Dictionary, from the few sheets then issued, is very distinctly and accurately printed in the Bengali character, double columns; and derives not the least part of its superior character to the generality of Native Indian books from being alphabetically arranged according to European custom. The work is extremely rare.

———— The same. (Great Sanskrit Lexicon) republished under the auspices of Kumara Upendrakrishna Deva Bahadur, by Varadakanta Mitra & Co., with a Preface in Bengali (3 columns on each page). Vol. I. complete in 40 parts, Vol. II. complete in 39 parts, Vol. III. 1—13 all pub. 4to. Calcutta, 1874-89. 3s. each part of about 32 pp. (Printed in Devanagari characters. Continuation can be supplied to order on the same terms.)
